Special minimum benefit tables to be eligible for a special minimum allowance, a person must have at least 11 years of coverage. A person acquires a year of coverage, having a certain minimum amount of earnings per year. Until 1979, the special minimum benefits did not increase if benefits were increased. The legislation provides for benefits for January 1973, March 1974 and January 1979. Automatic increases in benefits or cost-of-living adjustments have been increased for the first time since June 1979. For each year in which the benefit increase has become effective, we provide a special minimum table that classifies the year of coverage as a special minimum benefit called The Initial Insurance Amount. This form allows you to choose a year from 1973 to the present. If the increase in the allowance is not in effect in the year you have chosen, we will give you a table for the last previous year in which the increase was effective. For example, in 2009 and 2010, the increase in benefits is not in effect, so if you choose 2010, you will get a table, in effect for December 2008. Benefit tables for eligible persons prior to 1979, for those eligible for benefits prior to 1979, or for persons eligible for benefits prior to 1979, benefits are determined on the basis of primary insurance (PIA) amounts, either by tables or for many years until 1959 by formula. In any case, a person's PIA depends on the average monthly salary calculated based on that person's earnings record. (For eligible persons after 1978, benefits are calculated using formulas instead of tables.) This form allows you to choose a year from 1959 to the present. The PIA table, which became effective in the year of the year chosen, will be provided. Before the automatic increase in benefits, there were years when there was no increase in benefits. If no table is effective in your chosen year, a table will be provided that provided benefits this year. From December 2009 or December 2010, cost-of-living adjustments were not made, so the table, which will take effect in December 2008, remained in effect until December 2011. If you are like most people, you are busy and you may have trouble finding time to prepare meal plans or make dinner. But going through a drive-through or eating every night is not good for the budget or the body. Fortunately, several sites will not only help you find the best deals on the products, but they will also provide family meal planning menus and recipes for weekly meals. One famous E-mealz site that is endorsed by Dave Ramsey. I love E-mealz, but I also like a new site called Food on the Table. While The Food on the Table offers many of the same benefits as E-Mealz, it also offers great flexibility, which is especially good if you have a picky eater in the family. It's also free at the basic subscription level. The food on the table was started by Manuel Rosso, a busy father of four who was looking for a more effective way to feed his family. With the help of his wife, he started food on the table in August 2009. Since its launch, it has grown to more than 250,000 members. To help you create delicious weekly meal plans to offer quick dinner recipes for kids to help in maximizing savings in your grocery store, to create your grocery list for you to reduce the stress of cooking dinner As it works 1. Choose your grocery store After setting up an account, enter your zip code to find grocery stores in your area. They list a wide range of supermarkets to satisfy every shopper, including discount stores like Food4Less, big retail boxes like Super Target, and health food stores like Whole Foods. The food on the table also shows how many people have signed up for this particular store and how much all these people have saved in the last 30 days. 2. Choose what's important to you this week Next week, you'll be asked what's most important to you right now: saving time, saving money, finding ways to eat healthy on a budget, or making familiar meals. The food on the table will then generate your menu suggestions based on your choice. For example, if you choose to save time, you will get recipes that are quick to make and rely more on items such as frozen vegetables, not the ones you should clean and cut yourself. Eating healthy recipes, on the other hand, use very few processed foods, but can be more time consuming to prepare. 3. Choose Meat or Vegetarian Choose between meat or vegetarian. Then, if appropriate, choose the types of meat you would like to use during the week. Food on the table You are what meat is for sale based on the store you previously chose. You can choose the meat that is sold, as well as regular meat prices - the choice is yours. Next, the food on the table will generate two basic meal recipes for each meat option you choose. They use a little yellow selling tag to show you which recipes to use selling ingredients to maximize your savings even more. 4. Choose Recipes Look Recipes Food on the Table offers based on your criteria, and read recipe reviews to narrow down your choices. Then just choose which recipes you would like to prepare this week. Another good feature is that you can download your favorite family recipes and food on the table will try to choose those with ingredients that are currently on sale. If you don't like the recipes food on the table picks, click See All Recipes to select any recipe from your database. 5. Print a list of foods Once you choose the recipes, the food on the table will generate a list of ingredients that is organized by the grocery department. The list will tell you the amount you need to buy, but not the price if the store you choose that item to sell. In this case, the brand for sale, size, sale price, and how much you save will all be listed in italics next to the ingredient. The food on the table focuses on only one store, so you don't need to waste time traveling to a few stores. The cost and prices of food on the table are free at the basic subscription level. At this level you will be able to choose three recipes for the week based on the criteria that you have entered, or you can choose from the food in the recipe database table. The food on the table will generate a list of foods for these three dishes, but nothing more. You are on your own to plan the rest of your meals for a week, make a list of foods, and find ingredients for sale. But if you're new to Food on the Table, this is a great way to try their service. There are a number of paid subscription options, but each subscription is the same - it allows you to plan seven meals during the week and a list of foods created for all these dishes. Subscription price as follows: Monthly - $9.95 quarterly - $26.95 (save $1.07 per month from monthly subscription) Semis- $47.95 (save $1.96 per month from monthly subscription) annually - $69.95 (save $4.12 per month from monthly subscription) Benefits 1. The monetary savings level of your savings depends on your current eating habits and purchases. But if you regularly rely on fast food and pull out, eating on the table can save you money by making planning and shopping for a meal relatively easy. For example, if your family of four eats two fast food a week, you can spend $40 in just those two meals. However, if you replace them with the food you make at home, you spend only $15 to $20 on ingredients for both dishes that will save you $20 a week. For a year, it's saving $1,100 And your grocery savings may even be If you prefer recipes that include ingredients that are on sale. 2. Saving time for health reasons, my family can not eat anything with dairy products. However, it took me less than 10 minutes to pick my shop, set up my meal plan, and print out my grocery list. I always choose the option of a healthy diet, and even that is not that time-consuming. I usually only spend about 15 minutes of practical cooking time. 3. Boredom Buster My family buys beef in bulk every year, but I'm not so creative with preparing roasts and steaks. However, the food on the table offers different recipes for different types and pieces of meat. For example, when I recently chose filet steak as meat for a week, I was given a choice between Honey Mustard Steak and Beef and Broccoli Stir Fry. Although I've had honey mustard chicken before, I never thought to try it on steak. It was pretty good. 4. Delicious dishes I have tried a few weeks worth of food dishes on the table and so far they have all been delicious. My favorite bacon wrapped turkey burger. This burger has a decadent taste, just like restaurant food. Because the burger is wrapped in bacon, it stays moist, while most turkey burgers don't. To save money, we also choose meat-free meals several times a week and they are very good as well. For example, we made a vegetarian chili that was filled and full of healthy ingredients such as beans and vegetables. It was so good, in fact, that all three of my children ate it without complaint. Disadvantages 1. There is no way to narrow down the search If you want to avoid certain ingredients, there is no way to exclude recipes with these ingredients. You have to go through the recipes one by one to determine if the list of ingredients is acceptable or not. 2. The slow food site on the table has experienced rapid growth, and from time to time, the site can be slow, especially at weekends. One way to minimize this problem is to find time during the day or late at night to plan meals. 3. Can't search For Sales Ingredients in multiple stores While the site allows you to choose from multiple stores to shop, the food on the table is only looking for the sale of ingredients on the one you choose. If you are someone who likes cherry pick deals in every store, the food on the table can't help you do that. Final Word Food on the Table will help you save money by looking for ingredients for sale and eliminating the need to eat takeaways, fast food and frozen meals for dinner. Even if you only use it on a free subscription level, the savings can be significant and it will help provide your family with healthy, home-cooked meals. What to lose?
